Notice to the Trade.

W. H. TUNSON'S OFFICE, Nos. 45 and 45½ Centre-st., New-York.

At a meeting of the hands employed in this office, the paper was read and ordered to be presented to Mr. Tunson for his inspection.

To W. H. TUNSON, Esq.

"Sir: The hands employed in your office would respectfully call your attention to the custom now existing in many of our publications in this country, of sending up to the printer, a copy of each book or article, and asking it to be adopted as a similar practice. We would suggest 4 o'clock. By concurring with us in the above, you will gratify our anxious desire. Respecitely submitted, and signed by your employees. Re-

JAS. T. O'GALLAGHER, Chairman."

To which we received the following reply:

"GENTLEMEN: I have no objection to meet your wishes, in any reasonable manner, and therefore cheerfully comply with your request." W. H. TUNSON.

We take this opportunity to tender our thanks to W. H. Tunson for the pains he has bestowed in not only this but other similar requests. JAS. T. O'GALLAGHER, Chairman."
